LOUISVILLE
YOUTH
PHILANTHROPY
COUNCIL

WHO WE ARE

The Louisville Youth Philanthropy Council (LYPC) is dedicated to educating youth about philanthropy, inspiring them through hands-on experiences to become community leaders.

LYPC is an intensive, 16-week course that meets for 3 hours on Saturday afternoons from August through March. The focus is experiential learning; the students serve as members of a grant-making Board for each of their teams. The teams develop their own missions, research organizations that could fulfill their missions, interview organizational representatives, go on site visits and create proposal selection criteria to allow them to determine as a team how to grant $7,000. Each team has a dedicated facilitator, but they only provide guidance – the students make all of the decisions. Students who apply and are accepted into the LYPC program attend the 16 classes at no charge to them. Since we believe that anyone can be a philanthropist regardless of socio-economic status, it is important to us that the cost of the program not be a barrier to entry. As part of the LYPC experience, students get to:

- Work as part of a team to find a cause on which to focus their efforts
- Research local non-profits that fit their mission
- Raise money from the local community to fund student grants
- Vet and evaluate potential non-profit grant recipients
- Award up to $15,000 to one or multiple non-profits for specific projects
- Organize and execute an annual event
- Follow up with past grant recipients through a reporting process
- Learn about our community from leaders like The Mayor, Dr. Nat Irvin, Sterling Riggs and Sadiqa Reynolds
- Participate in a college credit course (if eligible) and earn three hours of college credit through the University of Louisville
- Make life-long friends
- Create a philanthropic mindset for life

At the heart of the Celebration Event is youth voice. Students share their philanthropic journeys firsthand through live presentations and multimedia storytelling, reflecting on what they have learned about civic engagement, leadership, and community health. The event highlights the nonprofit organizations selected by the students and the issues they address.
